DID YOU KNOW?

PASTA

The first certain record of noodles cooked by boiling is in the Jerusalem Talmud, written in Aramaic in the 5th century AD. The word used for the noodles was itriyah. In Arabic references this word stands for the dried noodles purchased from a vendor, rather than homemade noodles which would have been fresh. Dried noodles are portable, while fresh must be eaten immediately. More than likely, pasta was introduced during the Arab conquests of Sicily, carried in as a dry staple. The Arab geographer, Al Idrisi wrote that a flour-based product in the shape of strings was produced in Palermo, then an Arab colony.

VERJUS BLANC & ROUGE

Not quite wine, not quite vinegar, it subtly brightens and sweetens at once. Use it in sauce reductions, salad dressings, desserts and more.

XV OLIVE OIL

Made from the first cold pressing. Fruity, silky and velvety. A beautifully balanced oil with lovely buttery overtones and hints of almonds and freshly mown grass. Produced in Italy.

GRAPESEED OIL

Extremely high smoke point and slow viscosity, making it ideal for grilling and sauteing. Produced in Argentina.

RENIERIS

Singular estate oil that captures the freshness and aroma of the Mediterranean's most prized olives. Single varietal, single estate oil. Sweet, fruity and fragrant with a slight peppery finish. Produced in Greece.

OLIVE OIL

Homer called it "liquid gold." In ancient Greece, athletes ritually rubbed it all over their body. Its mystical glow illuminated history. Drops of it seeped into the bones of dead saints and martyrs through holes in their tombs. Olive oil has been more than mere food to the peoples of the Mediterranean: it has been medicinal, magical, an endless source of fascination and wonder and the fountain of great wealth and power. The olive tree, symbol of abundance, glory and peace, gave its leafy branches to crown the victorious in friendly games and bloody war, and the oil of its fruit has anointed the noblest of heads throughout history. Olive crowns and olive branches, emblems of benediction and purification, were ritually offered to deities and powerful figures: some were even found in Tutankhamen's tomb.

Olive culture has ancient roots. Fossilized remains of the olive tree's ancestor were found near Livorno, in Italy, dating from twenty million years ago, although actual cultivation probably did not occur in that area until the fifth century B.C. Olives were first cultivated in the Eastern part of the Mediterranean, in the region known as the "fertile crescent," and moved westwards over the millennia.

Beginning in 5000 B.C. and until 1400 B.C., olive cultivation spread from Crete to Syria, Palestine, and Israel; commercial networking and application of new knowledge then brought it to Southern Turkey, Cyprus, and Egypt. Until 1500 B.C., Greece - particularly Mycenae - was the area most heavily cultivated. With the expansion of the Greek colonies, olive culture reached Southern Italy and Northern Africa in the eighth century B.C., then spread into Southern France. Olive trees were planted in the entire Mediterranean basin under Roman rule. According to the historian Pliny, Italy had "excellent olive oil at reasonable prices" by the first century A.C, "the best in the Mediterranean," he maintained.

Grown, pressed and bottled 100% in California. The key to great oil is the time lapsed from harvest to crush. Olivista California EVOO is pressed within mere hours of harvesting!

The Only Vinegar That Believes “Haste Makes Waste”

The process is painstaking, slow and laborious, but worth every step. No shortcuts are taken, no inferior fruit picked, no spoiled wine made into vinegar: Minus 8 Vinegar is never boiled and never hurried. The superior quality that sets Minus 8 Vinegar apart from commonplace vinegar is guaranteed!

All Minus 8 Vinegar products are hand-crafted by a single exclusive winemaker at one exclusive vineyard, from ultra premium quality fruit that is grown to the strictest standards. Each vine must be protected from hungry birds and other animals with netting, until harvest, when the nets are removed. Harvest conditions for Minus 8 Wine Vinegar are often brutally cold temperatures below 8°C (17°F), Canadian winter winds and night skies make a bone chilling combination for the people who hand pick and press the grapes. Halogen lanterns powered by portable generators are erected in the vineyard for the pickers to see by.

When the temperature drops to at least -8°C, the grapes can be picked to make the wine for Minus 8 vinegar. The temperature must hold for several days, to obtain a solid freeze, and the best quality juice. The water component of the juice begins to turn into ice inside the fruit, leaving the acid, sugars, and flavors in liquid form to be pressed out.
